

What is Southwest Petroleum University?

Southwest Petroleum University (SWPU) was established in 1958 as the Sichuan Petroleum Institute. In 1970, it was renamed Southwest Petroleum Institute, and in 2005, it attained full university status, becoming Southwest Petroleum University. It is recognized as the second petroleum university in the People's Republic of China.

Does Southwest Petroleum University offer scholarships?

Southwest Petroleum University offers Partial and Fully funded scholarships. Contact Intime Study Advisors for further details. Southwest Petroleum University (SWPU) was established in 1958 as the Sichuan Petroleum Institute.

What does SWPU stand for?

Founded in 1958, Southwest Petroleum University (SWPU) is the second oil and gas engineering programs-based institution in China, formerly known as Sichuan Petroleum Institute. In 1970 it changed its name into Southwest Petroleum Institute, then Southwest Petroleum University in 2005.

Why is SWPU a good school for oil & natural gas?

SWPU's education is also oriented towards the oil and natural gas industry at home and abroad so as to promote the development of domestic as well as foreign economy. Enrollment of Full-time On-campus Undergraduates In 2018, SWPU has an enrollment of 34,413 full-time students, of which 29,367 are undergraduates, accounting for 85.34%.

Which is the second Petroleum University in China?

It is recognized as the second petroleum university in the People's Republic of China. Located in Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan Province in southwestern China, SWPU comprises 16 schools, including the School of Oil and Natural Gas Engineering, the School of Geosciences and Technology, and the School of Economics and Management.

What makes SWPU a good University?

SWPU is continuously deepening reform in graduate education, holding quality of talent education as the lifeline in degree and graduate education, making every effort to build itself into "a nationally renowned, high-level, research-oriented university with its petroleum engineering and its related areas reaching the world's first class".
